WA Health Graduate Development Program

WA Health's Graduate Development Program is looking to recruit talented Aboriginal graduates from a broad range of non-clinical backgrounds into the program and help make a difference to the health and wellbeing of Western Australians.

The program is designed to give graduates a head start in WA Health by developing their skills and abilities based on their academic background and areas of personal and professional interest.

Who are we looking for?

- Graduates interested in a career in WA Health and working with one of the State's largest employers.
- Well-rounded graduates who are innovative thinkers and self-motivated high performers.
- Graduates who are good communicators; able to work in a team; and show a commitment to learning and developing their skills.

What does the program offer Aboriginal graduates?

- A 12 month paid contract with WA Health.
- Extensive professional development including training workshops, executive shadowing and career coaching.
- A fully-funded, industry recognised Diploma of Leadership & Management qualification.
- Three non-clinical rotational placements, providing an opportunity to gain experience in a variety of areas across WA Health.
- Personal support networks consisting of a dedicated program coordinator, supervisors at each placement, an experienced mentor and a buddy who is a past graduate of the program.
- Interactions with fellow graduates who can provide insights and support.

Am I eligible for an Aboriginal Graduate Officer position?

To apply for an Aboriginal Graduate Officer position you need to:

1. Be Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander.
2. Have completed your degree in 2017 or plan to complete it in 2018.
3. Have a degree issued from a recognised university.

Want to know more?

Applications open on Monday 30 July 2018 and close on Monday 27 August 2018.
